About Anne-Marie:

Her background is an Ecologist with a Bachelor of Science, Environmental Science, and Ecology and its Application, from Griffith University (1995).

A Masters Degree in Urban and Regional Planning from QUT (1997).

Taught at QUT within the Faculty of Built Environment and Engineering and was a Senior Researcher at QUT.

Anne-Marie has always been into organic gardening and starting from a very young age, following one of her brothers around the garden, asking questions (like 'what do you use this for?'). Anne-Marie is from a large family and their garden supplied them with not just vegetables, fruit, chickens and ducks, but also an amazing garden of flowers and herbs that she loved experimenting with, tasting and using.
